A Report on Non-Ionizing Radiation

German Radiation Officials Advise Caution

February 5, 2007

The German Federal Office of Radiation Protection (BfS) has joined its Swedish counterpart in advising caution with respect to the use of mobile phones, following the release of the new Interphone brain tumor paper (see February 1 , below). The radiation office recommends that people keep their radiation exposures as low as possible. It also favors the use of low-SAR phones.
