There are many different kinds of sensitivities to radiation, which are totally forgotten or ignored by authority or by the public, mostly it's because , even specialist on our side are microwave illiterate. Almost every so called expert with the full knowledge of the harm this cellphone is causing still use one. I really don't understand that.

The different kinds of EMF are radar sensitivity, sensitive to electricity, microwaves and LED lights. Many people suffer from maybe two or more sources of EMF. The problem people are suffering from can vary, some people who are sensitive from electricity can use a cell phone, some people damage from microwave can't use a mobile phone or being close to microwaves beams but have no problems with electricity. Some people have problems with everything.

People are fleeing their homes because of being sick from EMF, losing their jobs, hopefully trying to survive in a low radiation area or in the forest.
Unfortunately the cellphone towers are spreading out more and more so there is almost no place left for us to be.

I have been sensitive to microwaves for more than 20 years. I became ill after an 3 G antenna was put up on my neighbours roof and beamed into my apartment. It took 10 days for be to be ill for life.

I had to flee my home and move home to my parents who luckily took care of me.But I lost everything, my health my life and my income and my apartment.

I have problems with all microwaves radiation, cellphones, wi-fi, cordless phones, cell towers, microwaves boasters, body scanners at airports, smart meters, smart TV's.
My symptoms are heart and chest pain, brain fog, can't focus, having learning problems, problems to do subtractions, to write, get very easily irritated and angry. I have memory loss, my short term memory is damaged.

If the radiation exposure has been strong, my signals from the brain is not working correctly and I have problems to be able to walk.I get very stressed very quickly and as a result also very angry. I have sleeping disorders, migraines.

These symptoms are for life, you can rest and feel better but once you get exposed from microwaves again, they 'll come back. There is no cure.
I can't visit hospitals because of the wi-fi routers indoors, I can't enjoy going to a concert or a theatre to see a play because everybody has a mobile phone beaming at me. I have problems to be on a bus, trains, cars with GPS, airplanes especially if they have a touch screen to watch a film, they are smart screen beaming microwaves all the time. Seeing friends in their homes because of their wi-fi and phones, booking a hotel room and having a holiday with all the cell towers and wi-fi everywhere with no escape.

I can visit a town for a while but I get very tired quickly. After a visit in a town I'm so tired it feels like I'm having jet leg for the next two days.
My protection in my body for EMF is zero. There are EMF weapons for crowd control which makes people feel very bad and they get a lot of pain, migraines etc. These weapons are using the same frequencies as a mobile phone tower but stronger. For me ,ordinary EMF radiation is equally as the crowd control weapons.

This is how it work. Professor Dr Martin Pall explained once at at lecture about microwave radiation : If you expose a group of people for the same amount of radiation, the same time, both people hypersensitive to EMF and people not feeling anything will have the results.
You take a blood sample from them and you will see that the red blood cells are clumping together and the red blood cells are oxidating. That is bad because it means the blood cells are opening up and welcoming cancer. This is the same for everybody, whether or not you are hypersensitive to EMF. If you have problems to EMF you will flee, but if you don't notice anything , you will keep on using the cell phone and be exposed by EMF from different sources and you might end up with a cancer, an heart attack, an autoimmune disorder or being hypersensitive to EMF. It's a game of Russian roulette, you never know what you'll get until the damage is already done.

To get cancer I guess is more accepted by authorities and the medical world so you get help and sympathy . But to be sick from EMF, you get really bullied from almost everybody.

EMF causes division in family and friends because there is no understanding. If a person or a child get sick, there is no insurance who will cover the person. It's not recognised as an illness or injury.

People are fleeing their homes because of being sick from EMF, losing their jobs, hopefully trying to survive in a low radiation area or in the forest. Unfortunately the cellphone towers are spreading out more and more so there is almost no place left for us to be.

People of all ages are getting sick. How is it going to be possible for a child who gets sick from EMF to get educated and later have a life, a job? Who is going to pay for their living expenses. We are in the same situation as the vaccine injured.
EMF damage is not accepted as an injury in our society. Expert with no knowledge about EMF radiation are making all the decisions and they don't understand a thing.

It's sad, most people believe you have to have wi-fi to have internet connection, almost everyone that I speak to, have no idea that you can have internet connection using a Ethernet cable and turn off your wi-fi and blue tooth. Even when I explain what you can do to avoid the harmful radiation most people can't be bothered to hard wire their computer. For most people it's more important for them to be able to use their cellphone anywhere in or outside their house than having a safe connection.

There are many misunderstandings about EMF. Many people also think that is ok to unplug the wi-fi for the night and that will do the job.
But using the wi-fi during the day, the damage from EMF radiation is already happened.

The EMF radiation works like this. If you are in the sun too long, you will notice the sunburn later when your skin is red and painful. Is no different with microwave radiation, once exposed long enough the damage is done until you have spend enough time away from EMF for your body to recover.

You also have to count in all the accumulative radiation that you are exposed to daily, cell phone, wi-fi, cellphones towers, smart meters etc. How strong the radiation is varies. Some cellphone towers are stronger than others.

To survive all this I have to have an EMF meter where ever I go so I understand if it's safe for me to be there or not.

Finally to survive this and to be able to live my life I wear protection clothes and hats made by a material called Swiss shield. It is very expensive because it is made of couper-silver treads that is intercepting the microwaves, so they don't harm you body.
That makes it possible for me to visit and do normal things for a few hours.
When I got sick I managed to survive with one layer of clothes made by Swiss shield, now with 4G and 5G I have to use 4-7 layers of protection clothes if I have to make a trip by bus for example.

If there are about 330 miljon people living in the USA and about 15%of them are very sensitive to EMF that would be about 49,5 million people spread out in the country not being able to work because of the big amount of EMF radiation. If these people were able to live in a town, city or place with no radiation, their problems would disappear and they could have a good life, work and make money, pay taxes. etc.Is it not a waste of people to treat EMF sensitive people like this just because of an handicap. There should be towns, places with no radiation for people who wants it and not being forced to EMF if you don't want it . There should be a choice. I don't want it, I didn't consent and I've been given no choice but to live in this world of pea soup radiation.

Thank you.
