Brief Comment

August 9, 2013 Comments on Notice of Inquiry, ET Docket No. 13-84 I am writing because I have been damaged by radiofrequency radiation. I developed radio wave sickness after moving into a new home that had two smart meters on it. I became sensitive to all things that transmit a radiofrequency--wifi, cell phone, microwave, video games, cordless speakers,lap top computer. The sensitivity got so severe that I experienced severe discomfort when even driving past a cellphone tower. I am now painfully aware of all the cell phone towers where we just built our new home. Prior to the sensitivity, I didn't even notice the sheer number of towers by my home. Now, it seems like I can feel every tower and transmission. Although I have discontinues all the use of the products that cause my problems, I cannot remove the smart meter nor can I get away from the cell phone towers. The levels of radiofrequency that we now live with is vast. There are a plethora of studies confirming biological affects from this level of radiofrequency radiation. My children complain of headaches since we have moved near these towers and are forced to be exposed to wifi in the classroom. Unfortunately I cannot protect them from exposure that is involuntary and my duty as a parent is to protect my child. The sensitivity that I have acquired has severely hampered my life. In fact, it has completely stolen it from me. I can no longer participate in society and can not even barrier my home from the offending radiation as there is a meter in my home and outside my home and I am surrounded by towers. All of these industries seem to be in the clear because they all just cite the FCC limits. These limits are set WAY TOO HIGH. It is affecting me and my children. These things were never tested for how they affect small children nor how they affect women. They weren't even tested for the constant amount to which we are currently exposed. Please review the NON-industry medical literature and please listen to people's experiences. I am sure that everyone who is suffering from this has a life to live. Please give us the opportunity to pursue what we in America value--life, liberty and happiness. I can not do any of these when I am forced to live with high levels of radiofrequency radiation on a constant basis. Give us a chance to have out lives back and prevent any one else from having this horrible situation happen to them. Thank you for your time, Veronica Zrnchik 9590 Julia Drive Saint John, Indiana 46373 219-365-1890

Brief Comment

Today I went to take my son to his gymnastics class. I suffered for one hour there underneath the florescent lights with all the other parents on their phones and ipads. After being overexposed to the smart meter radiofrequency radiation in my home, I developed a severe reaction to all forms of RF. Driving to the gym for my son, I pass several towers and there is one right by the gym. I suffer by florescent lights. By the time I left the gym, my mouth and skin were burning, I had the taste of metal in my mouth. My eyes were burning and had pain deep in the eye. My head was throbbing and I was nauseous. I couldn't talk with the other moms because of the sensitivity to the phones that they carry. I sat alone, sick, and praying that someone somewhere would stop tall the radiofrequency radiation so that perhaps I might have my life back. Maybe I could do more with my son--get to know the other moms, take my kids to more places. I am the mother of three boys and I am very limited in what I can do with them now. We use to do all kinds of things, but now that I encounter recvery where we go, I have had to stop taking them places. We are all suffering in one way or another. My physical symptoms have become so severe that I don't know how to deal with them most days. My sons are being cheated out of a life too. All this so the telecom industry and the utility industry can make billions of dollars. Where is the fairness??? Where are the laws that are suppose to protect us???? How will I survive this and have any kind of a life???? Who will even look at this very real problem with no bias??? Will the telecom industry continue to minimize this issue, deny that it exists and make all of us who suffer from this out to be mental cases??? I am sane now as I was sane 6months ago as I have always been sane. Five months ago I developed this sensitivity and it has destroyed my life. I am only 50 and I wonder what I have to look forward to. I have difficulty taking getting my kids to things that they love to do. I sleep in a faraday cage and often go there for relief during the day. My sons suffer from headaches and feeling of unwellness. Who, if not you, who will set the standards to ensure that everyone is protected?? Can you live with knowing that you are sentencing people like me to a living hell if you don't limit the cell towers, smart meters and public wifi that is out there. You control the fate of many people who are counting on you for protection. Please don't let this suffering continue. Please recognize tis very debilitating and real issue. Please don't let my life end in this manner. I have so much yet to do, experience, and enjoy. You will be effectively ending my life if you don't lower, limit and restrict the proliferation of radiofrequency radiation. For all who suffer, please do the right thing. Please look at the unbiased research. Please look to the unbiased doctors, please review the mounting levels of research information that shows that this is dangerous and that people need to be protected from it. Even those who don't experience noticeable physical symptoms are being affected. Some of us are experiencing debilitating physical symptoms. Please do the job you are supposed to be doing and protect the population from this. Do not protect the profits of the industry over the health of the people. May you please do the right thing.

Comments to FCC by Veronica Zrnchik

As plans to layer even more radiofrequency radiation are being made, those who have concerns need to voice them.

This is not a matter of simply feeling differently about something - like the installation of cell towers. This is not about the aesthetics of the towers. This is not about money or power. This is a notice of survival. What many of us deal with currently is trying to survive in an environment that is hostile to us biologically. Many people can feel the harsh effects of the invisible but very present pulse modulated waves all around us.

We have lost all of our rights, our finances, our homes, our ability to earn a living due to this ubiquitous exposure. We have rights too. We have needs too. We are being tortured every second of every day and have been reduced to simply trying to survive the moments we are alive.

Others have been unable to do so and have opted to not stay living on this planet of torture.

Why are some immediately affected and others do not notice the levels of damage being done to them? Science has yet to figure that out.

It isn't imagined. People do not 'imagine' themselves out of their homes, jobs, social circles, finances, and lives. They do not throw away everything they spent a lifetime earning because they imagine pain. They DO feel the pain that their body registers when exposed to this radiation. They do feel the extreme discomfort. They do get to the point that it becomes nearly impossible to function and they give up everything just to try to obtain relief. We are being systematically tortured for the benefit of the wireless industry. For profit, good and loving families are being ripped apart.

We have rights too. Our lives and the lives of our families matter too. While many others might not YET feel the effects, they are accumulating all across the population. Sickness is the end result of this type of exposure. More and more people are getting ill. More and more people are suffering. More and more people are realizing they are being tortured and nobody seems to care.

Those people are beginning to stand together and demand that we be given relief from this toxic exposure. Time to start thinking about the people of the world and of this country. I have rights. My family has rights. Every person has the right to not be tortured or to be forced to be exposed to something - in every space they exist - that is harmful and causing such severe discomfort.

The economic toll is devastating too. Drugs, doctors visits, lost work productivity. Children unable to sit in the wireless radiation-filled classrooms. The world needs relief. The suffering needs relief. The Department of Interior has requested relief for the animals, birds, flora and fauna, the trees, and the insects. Every living creature is being adversely affected. The only thing not being adversely affected is the pocketbooks of the industry and the government agencies who ride those coat tails.

I personally lost everything and my family was split apart because of this problem. There is no escape for people with severe sensitivities to this deadly radiation. Those who are not sensitive do not escape the deadly biological effects either. They are just more willing to endure it as they cannot yet feel the damage they are sustaining.

PLEASE, think of the damage and pain you are inflicting on literally every living thing on this planet. You will be held accountable in the final analysis. You should not be comfortable with dooming an entire segment of the population to suffer untold misery.

You should not be comfortable dooming an entire population to untold health consequences. Those health consequences are unpleasant, deadly, and very financially costly. Not to mention the sheer emotional debt that will ensue as families lose their health and their family members to this type of exposure.
Please remember your job function. You are a PROTECTIVE agency. Don't get confused as to whom you are suppose to be protecting. It is the people - not the corporations.
