Comments to FCC on Notice of Inquiry, ET Docket No. 13-84 by Marie Tomko

I've experiences muscle weakness and spasms in local retail establishments with wireless communications, and while touring a nursing home with wireless monitors for Alzheimer's patients.

My skin burned and my muscles became weak while visiting patients in the local Heart hospital as patients wear wireless monitors.  What happens to people like me who react adversely to electronic and microwave pollution if we ever have medical problems requiring hospitalization in such facilities?

Our health is in jeopardy. Medical facilities need to accommodate people who react to microwave radiation which causes serious functional impairment as we seek medical care.
