I have an extreme case of electromagnetic hypersensitivity (EHS) and react to various frequencies of EMF/RF such as Wi-Fi, other wireless devices and electric power lines. It has affected me to the point that I am quite often unable to function in my current job as an Auditor for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as well as my personal life.

Some of the health issues I have been experiencing are: The sensation that my entire body is being electrocuted, a disrupted nervous system that is in overdrive 24/7, frequent migraines, sleep disruption, lack of concentration, memory problems, heart palpitations, and joint pains to name a few things.

With the increase in environmental medicine, doctors have been gaining an understanding of this syndrome. As I was recently told by my doctors it most definitely leads to numerous fatal diseases such as Alzheimer's, Parkinson's, dead nerves in the brain, heart arrhythmias, etc. Please see attached information on scientific studies.

An increase in electromagnetic pollution and frequencies will only exacerbate this problem not only with me but many others who have EHS and those that do but are not realizing the connection.

Respectfully,

Katrina Hicks
