Name: Veronica Zrnchik

Occupation: Unable to work but by profession I am a Licensed Clinical Social Worker

Wireless Health Effects: The way wireless technology has affected me has evolved over time. I am currently battling migraines, intense fatigue, severe joint pain, flashes of light in my visual field, along with burning sensations on my skin and internal organs. I have brain fog, anomia and memory issues. In addition, I have occasional bouts of rapid heart rate and variable blood pressure issues. There is tightness in my chest and I am frequently short of breath and have diminished stamina. My sleep is erratic and I have a decrease in my balance.

Wireless technology has affected my life: Wireless technology exposure has forced me from my home and I am now unable to work. I struggle to go to places that others take for granted like a library or doctor's office. I can't travel, stay in hotels, or really visit my friends without inconveniencing them to shut off the wireless devices all around. Even with it off--the meters still affect me because they cannot be shut down due to their INVOLUNTARY nature. I am struggling financially due to inability to work. I cannot comfortably go out to eat and if I do, I get ill and it takes me an extended time to recover from the exposures.
I cannot even find comfort or healing in my own home due to the fact that I am forced to have THREE wireless microwave emitting devices for the utilities on and/or IN my home. The water meter IN my home forces me to avoid areas of my already small home. While I am still able to provide excellent care to my three sons--for me it is much harder physically. Having previously been healthy and fit has allowed me to stay afloat somewhat during this period where I am being made ill.
So not only am I physically being made sick and prevented from recovering by unresponsive companies--I am also unable to use sections of my own home! I still have wonderful friends but my contact with them has been greatly diminished. My hard work putting myself through undergraduate school and graduating with distinction with a near-perfect GPA AND my 17 years of work experience mean nothing when there is no place that can accommodate my medical issues.
An industry is causing large numbers in the population to be unproductive or struggle to be minimally productive. Life savings are lost on finding medical help, fighting back against a corrupt system, and trying to survive with no income. Working so hard simply to survive is no kind of life. Wireless radiation is causing a huge loss of quality of life for many. Harming people under the guise of helping them is just insane. Exposing children to this health-damaging radiation is unconscionable.

Concerns about the future: If 5G technology is unleashed on an unsuspecting public with NO testing like all the other technology--it will cause those who are already sick to be unable to function even minimally anymore. AND it is going to cause an increase in sensitivity in currently healthy individuals as well as the other problems connected with this from neurological issues to genotoxicity issues to fertility issues to cancers. It is unbelievably IRRESPONSIBLE to put this kind of radiation out there and ignore ALL the current research and do so with no long-term safety testing. Irresponsible is only the beginning of what this is. It is deadly and harmful. It is willfully and knowingly placing every living thing in harms way.
