My name is Jennifer White. I am a 42-year-old, mother of a 7 y/o, wife and business owner. I have had a successful Natural Products Brokerage for over 15 years. I eat extremely healthy, exercise and have always been extremely healthy.

About 6 years ago, I started developing headaches, insomnia, anxiety and generally overall feelings of no energy. At the time, I had visited several doctors, went through testing, including an MRI and nothing showed up. I travel in my car quite a bit for work, visiting accounts in Northern New England. I noticed that when I left my home… within several hours my symptoms would improve. I stared to notice that when I returned home, within a few hours, the headaches would return and my sleep patterns disrupted. I started to track the timing of when my symptoms occurred and noticed that we had a meter change out to an AMR meter and also around that time, switched to Wi-Fi in our home. I started turning the Wi-Fi off at night and my sleep patterns improved slightly as well as the headaches... although still present, they were greatly improved. My husband and I did a test for a few nights and actually cut the power on our house from the breaker box for 4 nights in a row... low and behold, my headaches went away and I was able to sleep! I realized that the meter which was very close to my bedroom was emitting low level radiation that was most likely causing these symptoms.

I called the power company and tried to plea with them to return to our analog meter but to no avail. We also switched to a wired internet system. I also at the time noticed that when I was in my stores with Wi-Fi or travelling on planes… my symptoms would return. We had been planning to move to New Hampshire for my business and put that plan on the fast track so that I could at least count on having an analog meter again so that was able to have a "safe place" at home to allow my body to heal between travel. We bought our house in Hancock New Hampshire about 2 years ago. We had an analog meter on the house and pleaded with Eversource to keep it. It was phone call after phone call and over the course of almost two years... they decided to offer us a self-read option so we got to keep our meter. Now... at home, my husband and I run two successful businesses from the home with a wired internet system and still have our analog meters. I no longer suffer from headaches at home, no anxiety, sleeplessness etc. When I travel from home and stay in hotels etc.… all of those symptoms return and it takes me 3-4 days at least to return to my normal self once I return home. It's a constant bombardment of EMF exposure that has literally changed my life, I'm not one to hide out at home… I'm very social but it seems the only place that I am at my greatest health. With Wi-Fi everywhere and now the 5G and Internet of things… we are being forced exposure round the clock!

I just returned from a family vacation in Virginia. My brother has a smart meter on their home and after 5 days of exposure, I'm exhausted, suffered from headaches every day and will now have to give myself 4 days to bounce back from this exposure. Nobody should be forced to live this way. We all deserve to live normal, healthy lives and the 5G will rob us of this.

I have a seven-year-old boy who is also sensitive. During the school year, he suffers from almost daily headaches… inability to concentrate, anxiety etc. At home, he doesn't experience any of this. Since being home for summer vacation, not one headache and on of the health problems he experiences at school. Why are we exposing our children to this dangerous technology?

Sincerely,

Jennifer White
