My name is Claire Montanaro and I am 52 years old. I purchased my first Samsung flip phone about 10 years ago. Right off the bat I noticed I became nauseous when speaking on it. It only happened when I spoke on this phone. Because of that, I kept my landline, which i still keep. I then moved onto a smart phone about 4 years ago. I thought inherently that now I could text and be okay. As soon as I started to text, maybe within 5 minutes, I noticed pressure in my ears, tingling fingertips, and then my face would turn red. As I continued texting and perusing the internet (this was all new to me and addicting!!), I would get lightheaded. During my initial days of heavy use of this phone, which was a Moto X, btw, the color drained from my face and for 3 straight days I could not sleep. I would also experience levels of anxiety and shakiness I never felt in my life. ....This gets worse.

I just purchased an LG G5, going on the premise that the SAR output was much less than that of a Moto X. Well, someone is lying. With this particular phone, I noticed a numbing in my face, tingling lips, pressure on the bridge of my nose and even weird kink pains in the back of my neck, like a tension. Also I could feel pressure on my neck where my glands are. This is all from running the GPS for my job, while the phone is 2 feet from me. I NEVER put these things to my ear… I have not in years. This all comes from short, sporadic periods of texting, doing a quick google on the internet or running the GPS. I even thought I would try voice texting but that was worse. I can feel the radiation immediately....

When I go into work and i see people playing on their cell phones, I almost get jealous because I cannot. It's not fair. When I tell others, most don't believe me... I didn't need to watch any you tube videos or read any articles because right from the flip phone, I understood these things are bad. I believe government knows exactly what is going on and will proceed with their depopulation agenda. I am a christian and I believe we are living in deceptive and treacherous times. I assume we are still running on 4g technology because I can see that lit at the top of my cell. God help us all when they roll out the 5G.

I am typing this from my home, wired computer. I would be ill for days if I wrote this from my cell phone. God help the children. I don't have any but if I did, they wouldn't be permitted to have cells. I think I watched a video that said Bill Gates' children are not allowed to have them. He knows. They are all liars.
