I probably write this letter to no avail for how could one electrically sensitive, marginalized citizen go up against the forces and manipulated science of the Wireless Industry.
But Hope sometimes reigns against Reality with a plea to lawmakers to consider the cries of those of us in the wilderness who cannot tolerate and live normal lives in totally saturated manmade microwave envelope that has been imposed upon all of us.

I PLEAD WITH YOU NOT TO PASS HR 4986 THAT WILL MAKE 5G DEPLOYMENT THE LAY OF THE LAND. FOR THE FULL DEPLOYMENT OF THIS TECHNOLOGY WOULD LEAVE THOSE US WHO FIND OURSELVES CONTINUALLY ON THE MOVE TO ESCAPE THE PHYSICAL EFFECTS FROM THIS MICROWAVE RADIATION WITH NO OPTIONS LEFT TO US.
I PLEAD WITH LAWMAKERS TO ASSIST AGENCY ON DISBILITIES TO CARRY FORTH ITS RECOGNITION THAT ELECTRICAL SENSITIVITY HAS BECOME A REAL PROBLEM. THE NEED NOW EXISTS FOR ACCOMMODATING IT IN BUILDING DESIGN AND THE ENVIRONMENTAL PLANNING

The Constitutional Clause providing Each Persons Right to Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness has long been lost to people like us who have spent most of their lives seeking place after place to live that will protect us from the never ending saturation and physical effects from this Artifical envelope of Radio and Microwave radiation.

Over 20 years ago I came quickly to the realization that my Sleep problems and racing heart were directly related to some type of Electromagnetic exposure and sensitivity. I had just moved to a new place and new area of the country to complete the second year of my Masters program in Urban Planning. Within a couple of nights in that location I found I could not fall or stay asleep and my head was pounding severely when I laid down. This frightened me to no end. I felt it must be something in my environment for it came on so suddenly. I decided to go away to the country to see if I could rest better. My symptoms completely disappeared. It was not until I made the connection with the now antiquated defunct Tube monitors/computer that I realized my symptoms of sleeplessness and racing heart became more severe with computer exposure. I then realized it had something to do with Electromagnetic radiation. I started to do a lot of research into the subject to confirm whether my symptoms could be somewhat related. I was shocked to find even 20 years ago the abundance of research that correlated disturbed sleep, heart issues with Microwave and electromagnetic exposures. But I had used the computer before and that did not occur. A greater examination of my nearby environment pointed out to me 3 large electrical transformer outside my bedroom window and large installation of Police antennas less than a block away. I was being oversaturated even then. When I finally moved away from the area was I able to regain back my regular sleep patterns, but needed to make accommodations with my professors to not use a computer to write extensive papers while at the same time preparing for written finals. For working extensively with a computer just made it impossible for me to get sufficient sleep and concentrate for my finals.
Needless to say this experience was just the tip of the iceberg of the marginalized existence that was to follow as the Wireless industry continued to expand at an exponential rate. I tried to pursue a career in my Master's vocation but that became increasingly more difficult as my blood pressure and sleep became more compromised with increasing computer exposure and finding myself living near large wireless installations. With the growth of smart meters and personal wireless devices I find myself having to move all the time to more remote living areas just to get adequate rest and reduce my jittery feeling when I am in an saturated environment of wireless devices and facilities. I have worked out programs with the Utility company to remove the Smart meters from my home.

I now find it increasing more taxing to be in big shopping centers and stores. I find myself becoming dizzy quickly after entering the stores or shopping centers. It is obvious they have saturated the store with Microwave transmitting technology so everyone can now walk around with their Cell phones on 'ON' mode which means they add to the burden of transmissions in my immediate environment.
The Idea that 5G could be reality would be my death-nell for I have no idea where I would be able to even remotely live and sleep. I beg you to consider the plight of the Electrically sensitive and all those people who would from their own volition choose to live under a More NATURAL Electromagnetic exposures that we all evolved and thrived under.
Of course, I have seen a Doctor many times over the years and relatively speaking I am in good health compared to many in my age group. I contribute that to understanding the minimizing if not eliminating my exposure to both wireless devices and other high emission electromagnetic devices has allowed me compared to my peers to be generally better mental and physical health. I have taken upon myself to be vigilant about my exposure by purchasing RF meters that assure me that I am not being over saturated for long periods of time. I have seen both in the ignorance and intractability of my peers and their addiction to this technology has led them to many severe Neurological diseases and even death at a much earlier age than necessary, not to mention cancers of all sorts. I feel strongly I would have become a victim to these diseases had I not listened to my body's warning signs early on and not done the appropriate research.
I have done extensive research into this subject over the last 20 years and will not overburden with that research since I believe you may have been fully informed by many of my Electrosensitive advocates. However, I just want to add that I find it impossible to understand how anyone can question the physical effects of RF/Microwave radiation saturating exposure on, principally, the Nervous System and secondarily, Cellular and Metabolic functions, when one 1) the Biomedical Industry is making full use of this type of Radiation technology to cure and alter a host of bodily conditions, and two 2) the rise and age of onset of debilitating mental disorders and even death parallels so closely the rise of Wireless technology. The research is replete with showing how Wireless technology affects those physical functions.
I submit to you below an Excel Attachment – Interactive RF Research Dbase that I hope will enlightening you further into the hazards of overexposure to Wireless Technologies. To best use of Dbase at minimal level you need only become familiar with the Excel "DATA" Menu Controls,, and Click and Double Click on the Green Study Column to open/close the Research Abstracts. For full scope use of this Dbase you can email me for Complete list of files and Help Instructions.

WE CANNOT LET 5G TECHNOLOGY BECOME THE LAY OF LAND WITHOUT AN SUFFICIENT HEARINGS REPRESENTING VIEWS FROM ALL SIDES OF THIS TECHNOLOGY DEBATE TO ENSURE OUR SOCIETY AND ENVIRONMENT IS NOT FURTHER DEGRADED BY ITS EFFECTS.
